The enlisted ranks and the officers each have a selection of ranks that include increased responsibility — along with increased pay. Check out this guide to the U.S. Navy ranks to learn more about their order.Navy Officer RanksNavy officer ranks are divided into orders that include commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Commissioned officers are always commissioned by the President of the United States. The first commissioned rank in the Navy is the Warrant Officer. This person has enlisted in the Navy and achieved a minimum of 13 years of service. The Warrant Officer ranking is divided into five sections from CW02 to CW05. The Chief Warrant Officer 2 is most junior of all of the Navy's commissioned ranks.Commissioned Officer Ranks Following Graduation from the USNA, NROTC or OCSThe Ensign 1 is the first official rank that's held by a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Officer Candidate School or the Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps. Lieutenant Junior Grade 2 follows the Ensign 1 designation. After Lieutenant Junior Grade 2, follow Lieutenant 3, Lieutenant Commander and Commander. A Commander is a senior Naval officer who commands a SEAL team, a Frigate or a Destroyer among other smaller vessels. Captains are ranked higher than Commanders and are in command of larger vessels including Navy aircraft carriers and Destroyer Squadrons.Commissioned Officers - Naval AdmiralsNavy Admirals begin with the Rear Admiral - Lower Half. This is a one-star rank that includes at-sea commands like Carrier-Cruiser Groups. The Rear Admiral is outranked by the two-star Rear Admiral-Upper Half. This person commands Carrier or Expeditionary Strike Groups along with Carrier-Cruiser Groups and is offered larger command opportunities. The Vice Admiral and Admiral are ranked higher than the Rear Admirals at three stars and four stars, respectively. A five-star Fleet Admiral is a wartime rank that hasn't been given since World War II. US Navy Admirals are ranked highest on the U.S. Navy pay grade chart.Enlisted Ranks ExplainedThe Navy also offers enlisted ranks that begin with the Seaman Recruit. This person is the junior member of the enlisted personnel. Following the Seaman Apprentice and then the Seaman. The Petty Officer Third Class is the first of the non-commissioned officer rankings, followed by the Petty Officer Second Class. The Petty Officer First Class is a high-grade petty officer who provides Divisional leadership. Enlisted Ranks and Non-Commissioned OfficersThe Chief Petty Officer is a senior non-commissioned officer in the Naval rankings. Then comes the Senior Chief Petty Officer and the Master Chief Petty Officer. These are both senior non-commissioned rankings too. The Command Master Chief Petty Officer is a senior enlisted adviser and the Command Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy is the highest-ranking of all of the enlisted persons in the U.S. Navy. He or she is assigned to tour units across the Navy, and to address concerns of enlisted sailors in US Navy service. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET Those who enlist in the Navy go through eight weeks (plus one week just for processing and paperwork) of boot camp at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center, on the shore of Lake Michigan near Chicago. Boot camp for the Navy is more classroom-based than other military training programs - even marching and weapons exercises are conducted indoors. In part, this is because so many regular Navy activities take place inside ships. Anyone wishing to become an officer in the Navy (and possibly captain a ship someday) has several options. The U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland is a four-year undergraduate college that prepares graduates to work as officers in the Navy. This is a prestigious and challenging program that requires a Congressional nomination to apply. Potential officers can also attend Officer Candidate School in Pensacola, Florida. This 13-week course is more rigorous than boot camp, and requires recruits to hold a degree before acceptance. Photo courtesy of The U.S. NavyNewly commissioned officers celebrate at the U.S. Naval Academy class of 2005 graduation and commissioning ceremony. Once past their initial training, recruits may attend a technical school or take part in the Journeyman Program. This places each Navy recruit with more experienced sailors in a variety of ratings to learn various Navy tasks first hand. The Navy Reserve Navy reservists train one weekend per month and two weeks each year. They provide a ready force of trained sailors who can be called up if the Navy needs additional manpower for a specific reason. Reservists are eligible for technical training during their service, and are eligible for certain veterans' benefits when they retire. Life on shore for Navy personnel is much the same as it is on other military bases. Everyone receives a housing stipend (new recruits usually live in dormitory-style apartments), and on-base housing is available for single sailors as well as larger families. Many amenities are included on the base, like grocery stores, medical facilities, churches and libraries. Recreational opportunities are provided as well, such as movie theaters, golf courses and fitness centers. The focus of Navy life, of course, is living and working on a ship. The standard Navy ship deployment lasts for six months; however, the Navy is experimenting with deployments shorter or longer than six months to make them more flexible and less predictable. Needless to say, living for six months or more with several hundred people on a ship means close quarters and a lot of patience and camaraderie. The circumstances also require complete, unwavering loyalty and obedience to the ship's captain, whose authority on his or her ship is absolute. There is a great deal of work to be done at any given time on a Navy ship, so sailors are kept busy. Even so, limited recreational activities are provided - one famous example was the "Reagan Idol" singing competition held on the USS Ronald Reagan that landed the winner on the actual American Idol TV show in 2007. In addition, every sailor gets 30 days of leave each year. They can fly for free on a stand-by basis on any Navy flight and most other military flights [source: The U.S. Navy]. Women play an important role in the modern Navy - their progress toward equal treatment and pay mirrored the equal rights movement in the United States. In 1976, Congress ordered that women be allowed to enter the Naval Academy. However, a 1948 law prevented women from serving on most Navy ships. This was overturned in 1978, and women have been serving their country aboard Navy vessels ever since. In addition, women were cleared for air combat duty in the 1990s, and now serve in that respect as well [source: PBS]. Photo courtesy of The U.S. NavyLt. As members of a U.S. military organization, all Navy personnel are subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Dismissal from the Navy can take a variety of forms, from an honorable discharge to a court martial, depending on the circumstances surrounding the dismissal. See How the Army Works for a full explanation. Navy veterans and retirees are eligible for a host of benefits ranging from burial in state cemeteries, health and life insurance, low-interest loans for mortgages or small businesses, and veterans' health care. The full suite of benefits available may depend on the nature of the veteran's dismissal - usually an honorable discharge or retirement is necessary for access to all benefits. A search for answers to specific questions about veterans' benefits begins here: The National Archives.
